

CIHC SURVEY ETHICAL CONCERNS AND CHALLENGES IN IECPCP

The CIHC Research Committee is conducting a very short survey of four questions to identify ethical concerns and challenges in the conduct of IECPCP. The Research Committee will produce a position paper that will inform researchers and practitioners of the ethical challenges related to planning, developing and conducting IECPCP research and intervention.

1. Thinking back over the first year of your IECPCP project, what ethical issues arose as your team began planning, implementing and evaluating the project?

2. Could you identify any issue related to confidentiality, privacy, informed consent, recruitment of participants, conflict of interests, compensation, balancing harm and benefits, multi-site review or any other ethical concern that provided additional challenge to your project?

3. Could you identify any concern that would not be experienced if the project was conducted within a single department or institution?

4. What did you learn about ethics related to IECPCP in conducting your project?

Please respond with your comments and thoughts by March 15, 2007. You could either respond to:

- Email Sharla King, University of Alberta: sharla.king@ualberta.ca
- Fax Maria Sarria, Dalhousie University: (902) 494-6291

February 27, 2007